

Agricultural Security Program

Towamensing property owners with ten or more acres of land may sign up for the Agricultural Security program. This is a Pennsylvania program that gives protection for normal farming activity against lawsuits. If, for example, you are baling hay--a normal farming operation--your neighbor would not be able to sue for dust from the hay baling process. The Township office has applications for the program, and there is no cost to the property owner to join. If you have fewer than ten acres, but the landowner next to your property is already in the program, you may sign up as well.
